CONCRETE STADIUM VOTED

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

YESTERDAY'S debate over Arkansas judges involving themselves in politics was apparently directed at the circumstances which caused Marcus Bone, a circuit judge, to abandon his campaign for governor, which was managed by another circuit judge, Dexter Bush. The Star feels, however, that the issue goes much deeper. The most flagrant politics has been played not by circuit judges but by judges of the State Supreme Court—and it is our purpose in this campaign to do everything a newspaper can do to defeat the present chief justice, C. E. Johnson, who on August 11 will face Griffin Smith in a two-man race.

Changes Made in Nevada Speaking; 2 Candidates Here

Boughton and Redland Engagements at 5:30 Instead of 8 p. m.

ASHLEY, KITCHENS

Gubernatorial Candidate Wednesday—Congress Bid on Thursday

A conflict with revival meetings at Boughton and Redland, the opening places of the Nevada county speaking tour, has caused a change in the hour at those places from night to late afternoon.

Nevada candidates are opening their tour at Boughton at 5:30 o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon instead of at 8 o'clock at night, as originally announced.

The candidates' second appearance, on Thursday at Redland, will also be at 5:30 instead of 8 p. m.

The 8 p. m. schedule will be carried out as originally announced, however, beginning with the "third speaking date, Friday night at Laneburg.

These changes were announced to the Star from Present Wednesday noon by Owen Waters, Nevada county treasurer, as spokesman for the candidates.

The political highlights in Hope this week are a speech by John Ashley, gubernatorial candidate, scheduled for 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the city hall; and an address by Wade Kitchens, candidate for congress, at 8 o'clock Thursday night, also at the city hall. The Hempstead county stump tour will open at Palmox at 9 o'clock next Monday morning, July 27.

'Phone Exchange Sale Authorized

Southwestern Sale Approved for Ozan, Mineral Springs and Washington

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Arkansas Utilities department issued an order Tuesday authorizing the Southwestern Bell Telephone company to sell small exchanges at Mineral Springs, Ozan and Washington to L. R. Hagin as of February 1, when Hagin took control of the properties.

The Southeast Arkansas Telephone and Power company was authorized to discontinue a rural telephone line from Sheridan to Prattville.

The Arkansas Power and Light company was authorized to reduce its gas rates to commercial consumers in towns throughout the state where it operates gas distributing systems. The reduction will total approximately $1168.58 annually.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The fellow who seems as deep as the ocean often proves to be only a hollow shell.

Go back a few years, to 1932, and you will recall that Chancellor J. Marion Futrell ran for governor in a campaign which was managed by another chancellor, C. E. Johnson. Futrell, at least I think so, made a good governor. But what happened to Johnson—the second chancey judge who dipped into the political pool with him?

The following year, 1933, Chief Justice Hart of the supreme court died, and Governor Futrell paid off Johnson by appointing him chief justice until one could be regularly elected.

So far, so good. There is no reason why a qualified judge should not be so elevated to the supreme bench. PROVIDING HE REMAINS AT HEART A JUDGE AND HAS RESOLVED TO PUT POLITICS BEHIND HIM.

But history seldom shows that once a judge has mixed in politics he has sufficient will power to withdraw from it and serve faithfully the high office that politics has brought him.

X X X

Certainly Chancellor Johnson didn't leave politics alone after he became chief justice.

It was required by law that a special election be called to sustain his appointment to the supreme bench. This election was held in the fall of 1934, and the Democratic nomination was equivalent to election. Chief Justice Johnson used his political power to have the Democratic State Convention declare him to be the party nominee.

Johnson forced Carroll D. Wood, life-long Democrat who had served on the supreme bench for a generation, to "walk the plank" and enter that special election as an Independent.

An arbitrary and disgraceful action for a politician, and an utterly disgraceful action to come from the head of the State Supreme Court.

Johnson had no opponent within the Democratic party in 1932—and his political henchmen strove mightily to provide the same happy situation again this year. They started a movement to disqualify Griffin Smith, his lone opponent—but this time they lost.

I know nothing about the technical qualifications of Smith. But I know there are thousands of attorneys in Arkansas who are competent to tell the local voters of the 73 counties which is the more injurious—a supreme judge with Smith's technical training, or a supreme judge with Johnson's political bias.

X X X

These are sharp words, written about the bar by a layman.

But in stating this newspaper's position I have only to remind you that when the Hempstead Taxpayers League, several years ago, was demanding that Circuit Judge Dexter Bush's salary and expenses be reduced along with those of the county officials The Star defended the judge as being paid too little rather than too much.

Years ago, when editor at El Dorado, we took the same position regarding the State Supreme Court, helping in the successful campaign to give the justices a salary in keeping with the dignity of their high office.

An American citizen must ever feel that even though all the political officers should be swept away, yet while we have judges we have government and law and order.

This is the first line of defense of the American state and nation—and particularly so in the troubled times of today.

Politics is our national game, but it leads us into the mistaken notion at times that we can settle all questions, even the ancient questions of private morality and private distribution of wealth, simply by voting on them.

The wise man—and every judge—knows that this is not so.

The founders of our American government had no answer for these eternal questions. The founders of our government were honest men—not afraid to say that for some questions they knew no answer. They erected the greatest governmental framework of all time on one simple precept: "Equal Justice Under the Law."

Obviously, therefore, most citizens must feel that judges should stay out of politics. That is the general rule. There are exceptions to any rule—even this one. The Star helped bring out Chancellor Futrell for governor

23 Indictments by Hempstead Jury

5 Murder Counts Returned Against Negro Prisoners

Several Pleas of Guilty Heard From List of Those Indicted

VERDICT TO EASON

Circuit Court in Recess Wednesday Until Thursday Morning

The Hempstead county grand jury at Washington Tuesday afternoon returned 23 indictments, five of which were for first degree murder against negro defendants.

The grand jury report said that 50 paid witnesses and numerous voluntary witnesses were examined.

The report also commended Sheriff Jim Bearden, his deputies, and Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart for "their untiring efforts toward law enforcement in the county."

List of Indictments:

Robert Lindsey, negro, first degree murder. He is charged with the killing of Minnie Golsen, negro girl of Hope. Lindsey is scheduled to go on trial Thursday morning.

Herbert Cheatham, negro, first degree murder. Cheatham is charged with the killing of Dannie Johnson. He pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Ollie V. Duffie, negro, first degree murder. Duffie is also held in the killing of Dannie Johnson. Duffie pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was given a five-year term in prison.

David McFadden, burglary and grand larceny. He is accused of breaking into the home of J. E. Walker. James Sampson, negro, first degree murder. Sampson is charged with the slaying of Tillie Cox, negro woman.

Claude Bissick, negro, first degree murder. Bissick is held in the death of Ruel Taylor.

Booker T. McDaniel, negro, was indicted on charges of burglary and grand larceny over stealing of cattle from Henry Smith, Carl Coffee and Vernon Schooley.

McDaniel pleaded guilty in all three cases and was sentenced to one year in each case, the sentences to run concurrently.

Otha Cox, burglary. Commodore Harris, negro, burglary. H. A. Wilson pleaded guilty to forgery and uttering, his case being continued for sentence.

Two indictments over receiving stolen property were returned against N. W. Page, Hope meat market operator. Three indictments of grand larceny were returned against Jim Woods, Washington meat market operator. Woods pleaded guilty in each case and was sentenced to one year on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently. Woods was sentenced over theft of cattle.

William and Lester Gaines, grand larceny. Pleas of guilty in each case, sentences being passed until October term of court. The Gaines brothers also are charged with stealing cattle.

Two indictments were returned against Sherman Roberts for receiving stolen cattle.

Martin Guthrie, receiving stolen cattle. Two indictments.

Eason Given Judgment
A circuit court jury Tuesday afternoon gave S. D. Eason of Hope judgment of $2,999 against Union Compress & Warehouse Co., over personal injuries sustained by Eason several months ago when he was attacked and beaten by a negro while on duty as night watchman.

Attorneys for the compress gave motion for a new trial, the motion being overruled. Attorneys then filed notice of appeal to the Arkansas supreme court.

Court was recessed Tuesday afternoon until Thursday morning when the murder trial of Robert Lindsey, negro, is scheduled to begin. Lindsey is held in the death of Minnie Golsen, negro girl.

Grand Jury Report
To the Honorable Dexter Bush:
We, your grand jury for the April, 1936 term of Hempstead County Circuit Court, beg to report as follows:

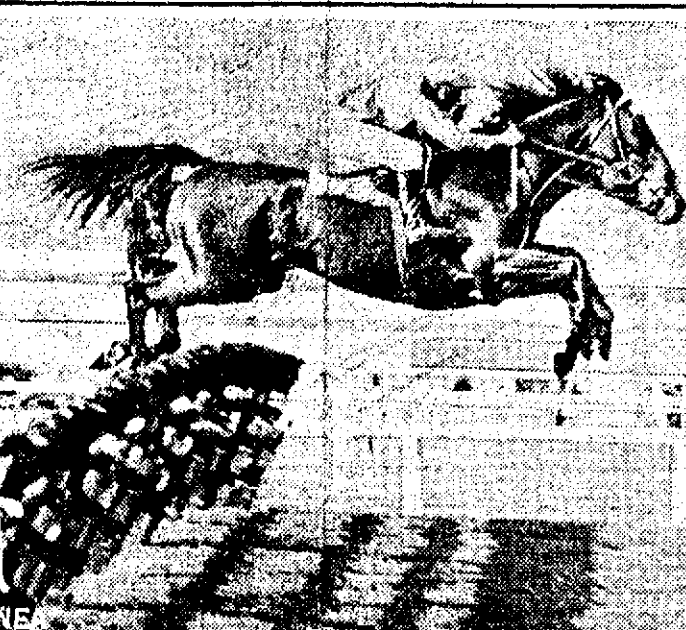

We have examined into all law violations that have come to our knowledge and in so doing, we have returned indictments in all cases where we thought the evidence was sufficient. We have examined fifty (50) paid witnesses and numerous voluntary witnesses and have returned into open court 23 true bills.

We want to take this opportunity to openly commend the Sheriff and his deputies and the Prosecuting Attorney and his deputy for their untiring efforts towards law enforcement in the county.

Kept on the Jump to Outrun Rival

Suppose you were counting horses to get to sleep—how many would you add to your total as this scene flashed before your weary mind? You'd probably have to get wide awake, to detect the horse nearly concealed by the rival who jumped simultaneously in a hurdle race at Melbourne, Australia. Better stick to counting sheep. It's less exciting, so more sedative.

1.52 Inches Rain Overnight in Hope

100-Plus Temperatures Return to Midwest—Cooler in South

Total precipitation over Hempstead county early Tuesday and Wednesday measured 1.52 inches, the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment station reported Wednesday afternoon.

Temperatures dropped. Tuesday's maximum was 92 degrees but Wednesday's was 82.

Tuesday's rainfall measured 24 inch. Wednesday's was much heavier, the station reporting 1.28 inches.

Heat Again in Midwest

CHICAGO.—(P)—A new heat wave, with temperatures from 100 to 105 degrees, will spread over the Corn Belt Thursday, Government Meteorologist J. R. Lloyd predicted Wednesday.

Lloyd said the 100 mark would be exceeded in Kansas, Nebraska, western Iowa and northwestern Missouri.

There were no showers in sight for any of the North Central States except Michigan and the area immediately around the Great Lakes.

2 More Held in Murder of Co-ed

Carolina Hotel Employees to Be Questioned as Well as Violinist

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(P)—Arrest for questioning of two more employees of the Battery Park hotel was revealed Tuesday while Sheriff Laurence E. Brown worked in secrecy on his investigation of the slaying of Helen Cleveland, Staten Island co-ed, in her hotel room last Thursday.

The sheriff said he detained Edward Fleming, bellboy, and L. D. Roddy, elevator operator, after he had subjected Daniel H. Gaddy, hotel watchman, to a rigid questioning.

To be questioned is Mark Wollner, radio and concert violinist, being held without charges. Wollner claims he can prove by Mildred Ward, also held, that he spent the night of the murder at his room in the Ward's home.

The sheriff said he has statements from at least eight witnesses contradicting the musician's story.

For the first time since Sunday morning, when photographers were permitted to take pictures of the violinist, word came from the jail on the 15th floor of the courthouse of his condition.

Geoffrey Ingle, the jailer, told reporters Wollner was in "good spirits," and had "an excellent appetite."

In contrast, he said, Gaddy was very pale, "nervous and jittery and although he may have eaten one or two sandwiches sent him by his wife, outside of those I am sure he has not eaten."

Democratic Senator and Governor Get Nomination

HELENA, Montana.—(P)—Senator James Murray and Governor Elmer Holt tapped rival candidates for the Democratic nominations for the offices they now hold, with a third of the Montana primary election returns counted.

Ashley's Choice Regarded Certain

His Political Enemy Is Quitting Post in Revenue Department

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Governor Futrell said Wednesday he was ready to receive the resignation of W. A. Jackson, attorney of the State Revenue Department "if he wishes to tender it to me."

The governor said Jackson advised him he had decided to turn in his resignation and would hand it to Revenue Commissioner Wiseman as soon as he could get in touch with him.

The revenue department attorney's decision to resign followed published reports that the state administration apparently had decided to support John C. Ashley in the governor's race.

Report Seems Confirmed

LITTLE ROCK.—Confirmation of the report that Futrell administration forces have "passed the word" to support Senator John C. Ashley for governor was seen in the disclosure Tuesday that W. A. Jackson of Walnut Ridge will resign as attorney for the State Revenue Department rather than go with the administration in its choice of candidates.

Mr. Jackson said that he was preparing his resignation and that he would present it to Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman Wednesday. He said the commissioner's absence from the office prevented him from resigning Tuesday.

He said he will give the reasons for his resignation in the letter, but declined to reveal in detail what his reasons are.

It is known that Jackson, a former sheriff of Randolph county and a former state senator from the Second district, and Senator Ashley had a personal difference over legal matters several years ago and have not been on friendly terms since.

Jackson's friends predicted that he probably will take the stump for some candidate in opposition to Senator Ashley.

Senator Ashley and his campaign manager, Elbert Godwin of Camden, were out town Tuesday, but representatives of Ashley headquarters said the campaign was being conducted according to schedule without reference to "reports and rumors."

Spokesmen at other headquarters accepted the report that the administration had "gone for Ashley" as true and admitted privately that they were awaiting with interest the effect on the campaign generally.

One headquarters spokesman said: "We're not wearing crepe."

Another said: "We would have welcomed the votes and moral support of the administration, if they had left us to raise the campaign fund without soliciting contributions from state employees."

Still another said: "We definitely gave up the idea of getting administration support several weeks ago and will continue the campaign without reference to administration's activities."

Reports in Little Rock that some of Circuit Judge Marcus Bone's supporters would attempt to deliver his support to another candidate was met with an announcement by Judge Bone at his home in Batesville that he is not planning further activity in the campaign.

Judge Bone returned to his home following announcement of his withdrawal from the race Monday and said he will rest several weeks from the effects of four weeks' strenuous campaigning.

City Budget Fixed at $39,200, With Surplus of $3,140

J. S. Conway, Jr., Petitions for 7th Liquor Store—Action Is Deferred

REJECT CLUBHOUSE

Board of Affairs Recommends That Groups Use One Community House

The operating budget for the fiscal year ending in April, 1937, was adopted Tuesday night by the city council without much argument.

The budget had been generally agreed upon by council members before the session.

Total salaries and expenses were fixed at $39,200. Estimated revenue was placed at $42,340, leaving a prospective surplus in the city treasury of $3,140.

J. S. Conway, Jr., appeared before the council and asked for a letter of recommendation to take before Revenue Commissioner Wiseman to obtain a license to operate a liquor store in Hope.

Sometime ago council members generally agreed that the present six liquor stores in Hope were sufficient to supply the demand in the Hope area.

The matter was referred to the police committee without action. Asks "No Limit" for Beer

John Green of the City Cafe appeared before the council and asked that the present beer ordinance be amended to allow operators to sell beer at all hours, day and night.

The present ordinance prohibits the sale of beer from 12 o'clock Saturday night until 8 a. m. Sunday and from 10 p. m. Sunday until 12:01 on Monday.

Green's proposal was referred to the ordinance committee without action. He was accompanied by several beer operators.

The original beer ordinance prohibited sale of beer on Sunday, but the ordinance has been gradually amended.

The clubwomen had asked the disbursement of the hope of obtaining additional funds through a WPA appropriation. Here is the report of the Board of Public Affairs:

"We, the Board of Public Affairs, respectfully state that we have met at your request and considered the plans for the Women's City Clubhouse, and have also discussed the donation by the city of $500 to this project.

"It is our understanding of the law that the board of public affairs has no authority whatever to recommend that gift of any money for any purpose, but that its function is simply to let contracts for labor and material together with the duty to transmit recommendations to your body for such expenditures.

"Therefore, we hesitate to make any recommendation at all on this project.

Europe Squadron Likely for U. S. A.

Spanish Situation Grows Tense—Recapture of San Sebastian Rumored

WASHINGTON.—(P)—A possibility that the generally uncertain European situation might impel the United States to re-establish a naval squadron in European waters was indicated Wednesday by Secretary of State Hull.

Hull said consideration of the question had not progressed to any definite point but this government was not unmindful of the problem created for it by the absence of vessels on permanent station in European waters.

Long "Betrayed" by Leche, Charge

Head of Share-the-Wealth Society Threatens Ouster of Governor

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(P)—The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith threatened Tuesday night the removal from office Gov. Richard Leche for "double-crossing" the late Huey P. Long.

"The blood of Huey Long cries against this betrayal," Smith shouted in an address over the radio hook-leader he said, has made a traitor with Long's "worst enemy," President Roosevelt, had repudiated many of Long's laws and had broken faith with the late senator by enacting a sales tax to replace a tax on the Standard company which Long's efforts to pass resulted in his impeachment.

He expressed the hope Mrs. Leche, the senator's widow, would seek election to the United States senate against the Democratic nominee, Al J. Ellender, and that Representative William Lemke's name would be placed on the Louisiana presidential ballot.

He said that if Governor Leche put out any "shenanigans" by summoning the legislature in session to keep names of Mrs. Long and Lemke off ballot he would "call 100,000 people Baton Rouge for the purpose of killing you out."

Hope Pays $2,500 as City Share of a $20,000 Project

Board of Affairs Requires Repayment at Rate of $50 Per Game

WORK IS STARTED

Expect to Have East Hall Completed in Time for Opening Game

Hope High School was assured $20,000 concrete football stadium by the city council, meeting in regular session Tuesday night, voted to advance $2,500, which represents the community's share of a WPA project. Federal funds will provide $17,500.

Alderman L. A. Keith cast the dissenting vote.

The council followed a recommendation of the Board of Public Affairs to advance $2,500 to School District 1-A for a period of 10 years, to be made at the rate of $250 each game played in the stadium, the high school varsity team.

Already at Work A crew of 40 men were at work Wednesday on the new stadium, with the hope of having the east side completed in time for the opening game in September.

Work on the west side will start the close of the season.

A tile fence, 9 feet high, will be erected on the north and west sides of the field with a wooden fence on the south and east sides.

The concrete structure will be built high with two long rows of seats on either side of the field. The project is a duplication of the stadium now under construction, Henderson State Teachers' college.

The city council adopted the Board of Public Affairs report which calls for the building of a new stadium. "We, the Board of Public Affairs, state that we met in special session requested by you, at which meeting members were present together with Coach Foy H. Harmon."

"We discussed thoroughly the proposition submitted by Mr. Harmon to the city council; and it is our recommendation that the city yard an amount not to exceed $2,500 toward the building of a concrete stadium."

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Likewise have convulsions much more frequently than do adults. The nervous system of the child is so sensitive that frequently an acute infectious disease will begin with convulsions. If there is an associated rapid rise in the body temperature, convulsions are more common than otherwise.

In ordering convulsions the child loses consciousness and becomes rigid. Then there may be a spasmodic jerking of the face and of the arms and legs. It is, of course, necessary to distinguish between ordinary, mild convulsions, and those which are the result of epilepsy.

It is important to know as soon as possible the cause of the convulsions. This can be determined only by a competent doctor. Even he, however, may not be able to make a diagnosis immediately, since it may require several days for the disease involved to develop.

Nevertheless, convulsions should be checked as soon as possible because of the damage they may do to the body.

It is known that warmth is quite sedative, so a hot bath often is used to control mild convulsions. Wrapping the baby in blankets and applying hot water bottles or electric pads also will lessen the convulsions.

You should be certain, however, that the heating equipment used is tested before being applied to the baby's sensitive skin, because of the danger of burning.

In a study of convulsions in children, made some years ago, it was found that boys and girls were affected almost equally. In only one-fifth of the cases were the convulsions apparently due to epilepsy.

It is particularly interesting to know that many parents have found the convulsive disorders frequently associated with constipation, and that the number of fits were increased by meals which were unusually large or rich.

Parents are prone to blame all the disorders of infancy on constipation or on teething. These, however, are rarely actual causes. For this reason, a diagnosis is of greatest importance.

It is well established that deficiencies in calcium in the body will produce a type of convulsive disorder called tetany, which is in way related to rickets; occasionally, in fact, a complication of rickets.

Victims of tetany are promptly benefited if the doctor prescribes suitable amounts of the necessary drugs, including calcium and vitamin D.

amused by the things they most easily recognize," he expounded. "You're sure to get a laugh just by holding up a mirror to nature."

"Only this morning I got a letter from a woman who said, 'When my husband picks up a matchbox he shakes it exactly the way you always do on the screen.'"

"In another letter a woman said, 'My little boy makes just the kind of faces you do. We had an ancestor named Horton, and we may be related.'"

"Well, there are two good examples of what I'm trying to explain. The woman with the matchbox-shaking husband doesn't laugh at him, and the other woman probably doesn't giggle whenever she looks at her son. But they laugh when they watch me, because they can say, 'Now isn't that exactly like my Henry!'"

"The red-faced, pouchy-eyed Horton makes full use of the little private life allotted him, and never goes out to parties. Not that he's anti-social; indeed, he has what he calls a barroom complex—gives a party at his own house almost every day he doesn't happen to be working. These are daytime parties, though, because he goes to bed at dusk and rises at 5:30 a. m. All Hollywood knows him as 'Horton, the Builder.' Eleven years ago he began building a house on his nine-acre estate at Echeina, and is still at it. The way things look now he will have reached the physical limits of the project in another three or four years. It's a rambling establishment of many different levels, and drives architects crazy."

"I like to think of it as Colonial," said Horton-the-Builders, a little wistfully. "But that is not the opinion of people who come to visit me."

So Much for Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HELENA DERRICK, youthful head of the women's sportswear department at Helvig's store, goes on a week-end party at Crest Mountain Lodge. There she meets handsome PETER HENDERSON. It is a case of love at first sight between them. Peter asks Helena to marry him and the ceremony takes place.

Later the crowd goes swimming. Peter makes a reckless dive and is seriously injured. Lingerings between life and death, Peter asks Helena to summon his lawyer, JOHN COURTNEY. Courtney arrives and a short time later Peter dies.

Helena is informed she is sole heir to a large fortune, including the Henderson department store. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI
JOHN COURTNEY looked at Helena in astonishment. "But that isn't the way Peter wanted it, apparently," he said.

"Isn't there anyone else?" Courtney studied his hands a moment before replying. "There's Peter's uncle, Roger Barnes. He has been managing the store. You see, Peter has been away a good deal."

"Then why shouldn't Barnes have it?"

"Because Peter has provided that you shall have it," Courtney told her patiently. "I want to be honest with you, Mrs. Henderson. We may have trouble with Roger Barnes. It's almost certain that he will feel the store should have come to him. I expect him to contest the will."

Helena's shoulders sagged wearily. "I'm sure I can't fight it. She raised her eyes to Courtney. "Tell me about—about Leah Frazier. Peter interceded that she was your friend, but I—I know differently."

Courtney cleared his throat. "I'm coming to that. You see, Leah Frazier belongs to one of the town's oldest families. She and Peter had known each other since they were children. Then Leah went east to school, finally to Europe. Peter went his own way—to a military prep school in the south, and then to Stanford. But when they returned, and were in town together, Peter called on Leah often. They were together at our local affairs. People began to take it for granted that, whenever Peter got ready to settle down, he would marry Leah Frazier."

"But he—he must have planned to marry her . . . some time?"

"No doubt. As a duty," Courtney smiled. "Then you came along."

Helena's fists clenched until the knuckles showed white. "Go," she knew I wish I—I hadn't," she

Bells Chapel

Rev. C. L. Henbest of Rogers, Ark., will begin a revival meeting July 27. Every one is urged to attend these services.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart spent Saturday at DeQuincy.

Mrs. Garland White was Monday guest of Mrs. Elmer Bell.

Guy and Glen Tate was Saturday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Presley at Delight.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Honea and children are spending this week at Caney attending the revival meeting.

Mrs. Joel Chamberlee was the Monday guest of Mrs. Jack Cramer of and 16th century books, and reads himself to sleep studying the Baconian theory. He declines to argue the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy, for fear of getting bombs in his mail.

Horton still has a gnawing nostalgia for the theater. Sometimes, from his business office in a local theater building, he goes down into the empty, darkened house and sits there, in the third row, dreaming.

Hercules of Mat Here Wednesday

Pete Baltram Is to Appear in Blind Wrestling Royal in Hope

Pete Baltram, self-styled Hercules of the Mat, was the fourth wrestler signed to appear in the blind wrestling royal to be held Wednesday night at the South Walnut street arena.

Fromster Bert Mauldin announced. The fifth wrestler will be announced from the ring side. Others to appear are George Ligosky, black-headed Russian, Bobby Burns of Dallas, and Jimmy Goodridge. The latter is a newcomer to Hope.

L. A. Stanley, Jr., of Palmos, will meet Wayne Vines in a three-round amateur boxing match. Stanley fought here last week, getting a draw with J. W. Harper of Hope.

Toughie Reno, local negro, is billed for a 4-round fight. His opponent will be announced at the ringside.

Following the wrestler's royal the winners come back to meet in the 45-minute semi-final and main event, each based on two out of three falls. The show starts at 8:15.

Club Notes

Oak Grove
The Oak Grove Home Demonstration club met July 13th at the home of Mrs. S. B. Skinner with 10 members and 3 visitors present and 1 new member added to the roll being Miss Gene Givings.

The club was called to order by our president, Mrs. S. B. Skinner. The club sang, He Loves Me.

Mrs. Leo Collier led the devotional reading, the 24th Psalm, followed by all repeating the Lord's prayer.

The roll call was answered by telling what you plan to exhibit at the fair. Minutes of our last meeting were read and approved.

Sure was glad to have our new demonstration agent, Miss Melva Bullington with us. She gave us demonstration on making ice cream.

Miss Ludy Allen and Mrs. J. C. Collier was in charge of the recreational period. Games were enjoyed. The hostess served ice cream.

Our next meeting will be with Miss Ludy Allen August 10th.

Only about 25 pairs of sand-hill cranes are left in the entire United States.

Your House of Happiness

Take what God gives, O heart of mine,
And build your house of happiness.
Perchance some have been given more:

But many have been given less.
The treasure is lying at your feet,
Whose value you but faintly guess.
Another builder, looking on,
Would rather heaven to possess.

Have you found work that you can do?
Is there a heart that loves you best?
Is there a spot somewhere called home?

Where, spent and worn, your soul may rest?

A friendly tree? A book? A song?
A dog that loves your hand's caress?
A store of health to meet life's needs?
Oh, build your house of happiness.
Trust not tomorrow's dawn to bring
The dreamed-of joy for which you wait.

You have enough of pleasant things
To house your soul in goodly state;
Tomorrow Time's relentless stream
May bear what now you have away.
Take what God gives, O heart, and build

Your House of Happiness today!

ess. The devotion was given by Mrs. C. W. Harrington. The program for the afternoon included an examination on the recently finished study course, "Who Is My Neighbor." Fourteen members responded to the roll call. During the social hour, the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Louis Baird and daughter, Miss Margaret of Dallas, Texas, are guests of Mrs. Baird's sister, Mrs. Kitty Massey and family.

Drs. Chas. A. and Etta Champlin and Miss Manie Twitchell arrived home Tuesday afternoon from a two month's stay in Kirksville, Mo., where Dr. Champlin took a post-graduate course in Osteopathy. Friends will be glad to know that Miss Twitchell who is recovering from a serious illness following a major operation stood the trip nicely.

Miss Marie Black has returned from a two weeks visit in Dallas and Commerce, Texas.

Miss Margaret Kinsler, popular bride-elect, who has been the inspiration for a number of delightful social functions within the last week, was the honoree at a gift-shower on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. V. Herndon on North Main street with Mrs. R. D. Franklin, Mrs. C. C. Lewis, Mrs. M. M. McCloughan and Mrs. Carl Wilkerson as associate hostesses. The Herndon home was aglow with a variety of lovely summer flowers, including roses, zinnias, dahlias and ferns, attractively arranged and placed at every point of vantage. The guests were met at the door by Misses Mary Sue Anderson and Julia Broening, and introduced to the receiving line by Mrs. R. T. Briant. Other than the hostesses, the line included the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Thos. Kinsler, Mrs. J. F. Porterfield and Misses Katherine Briant and Helen Perdue. The guests were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Arthur Swanke and Miss Ruth Barrett. Presiding in the dining room were Mrs. Terrell Cornelius and Mrs. Malcolm Porterfield. Lovely flower arrangements were used throughout the dining room and the beautiful lace covered table was centered with a silver basket of roses and ferns, flanked by white tapered burning in silver holders. The confections and dainty refreshments stressed the bridal motif. Assisting in the dining room courtesies were Mrs. Bill Wray, Mrs. Henry Summerville and Misses Helen Bowden and Margaret Powell. Mrs. R. V. Herndon Jr. and Mrs. Young presided over the bride's book. In the gift room were Miss Martha Cantley and Miss Alice Mae Waddle and Mrs. Cecil Wyatt. Others dispensing hospitality for this delightful compliment were Mrs. Roy Anderson and Mrs. W. F. Broening.

Mrs. Holman Johnson and daughter, Patsy of Truman, Ark., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Hann.

Mrs. Rufus Graves entertained in honor of her little daughter, Shirley, Ann's fifth birthday Monday afternoon at her home on North Ferguson street from 3 to 4:30. The color scheme was carried out in pink and white. Miss Josephine Andres and Miss Ruth Marie Keen assisted Mrs. Graves. A large birthday cake with five glowing candles was cut and served with ice cream. Bob Montgomery in Saenger Film

With Rosalind Russell and Frank Morgan in "Trouble for Two"

Something out of the ordinary run of film fare opens at the Saenger Thursday and Friday with the presentation of that new romantic adventure drama, "Trouble for Two," co-starring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, with Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen and Louis Hayward in the supporting cast.

Based on "The Suicide Club," a story by the immortal Robert Louis Stevenson, the plot concerns itself with a prince and princess who, bored with the rituals and trappings of a royal existence, set out to find love and adventure and find themselves, instead, involved in a sinister organization known as The Suicide Club, and designed solely for the perpetuation of murder.

By a trick of fate Miss Russell is chosen as the instrument by whose hand Montgomery's death is to be achieved. It is in the manner in which she extricates herself from this strange predicament and serves instead to rescue the man she loves which gives this tale its wealth of suspense, thrills, unusual details and romantic excitement.

Wednesday night is bargain night, when "The Return of Sophie Lang" will be shown for two shows only.

John L. Lewis Denies Federation Can Force Them to "Trial"

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The disclosure that unionization of a million workers was the aim of the present campaign to organize the steel industry was made Wednesday as informed sources said John L. Lewis and the American Federation of Labor were near the parting of the ways.

Phillips Murray, active head of the steel organization campaign, revealed this figure, which is almost double the objective previously announced.

Ignore A. F. of L. Summons

WASHINGTON—(AP)—John L. Lewis told the American Federation of Labor's Executive Council Tuesday night that members of his Committee for Industrial Organization would refuse to stand trial for "insurrection" and that the committee would "carry on."

Labor interpreted this announcement as making certain a wide split in the federation.

The Executive Council had "invited and requested" the 12 unions seeking to organize all the workers in each big industry into one big union, to appear before it and answer charges they were violating A. F. of L. law by disregarding rights claimed by craft unions in attempting to organize workers along craft lines, such as carpenters and machinists.

A Seventeen-Hundred-Dollar Centennial Edition Heralds Your Section of Arkansas to the World!

The picture shows the scene in The Star office the morning of June 26—when the newspaper brought off its Arkansas Centennial Edition.

Five sections had been assembled—all but the “main news” which was then being run off the press—and you are looking at a stack of 25,000 eight-page sections.

Two months in the making, the production cost of this one edition was Seventeen Hundred Dollars—largest and finest newspaper in the history of the Red river country.

Its forms are knocked down.

Its type is destroyed.

Its engravings have gone into storage.

Only a few hundred copies remain—and when they pass, it is unlikely that so important an historical edition will be issued again within the lifetime of this generation in Southwest Arkansas.

Mail-Them-Away Copies

(Unbound)

Price 25c--Add 6c If Mailed

Mail it away to friends in other states—25 cents per copy, plus 6 cents postage. You may buy the Centennial Edition at twelve newsstands in this territory, or you may pay 31 cents at The Star office and we will wrap and mail your copies for you.

Quezon Toils With Fiery Zeal to Achieve His Goal of Great Philippine Nation

Confidence Marks Every Move of Frail 'Dynamo' Who Guides Destiny of Islands

By JACK FOSTER
NBA Service Special Correspondent
MANILA, Philippine Islands—A small, sensitive hand with tapering fingers reaches for its third cigarette in half an hour.

"I've been sick off and on for years, you know," says the clear, incisive voice. "But I've never given up smoking. It entertains my nerves."

Certainly if there is anything that President Manuel Luis Quezon needs it is something to entertain his nerves. Now that he has fully recovered from his recent illness, his nerves carry him from dawn until late at night through the manifold duties of starting this new commonwealth on its unique destiny.

They lead him through interviews, press conferences, cabinet meetings, social functions, trips into the provinces—that endless round of routine which is the penalty of fame.

Eight months have passed since Quezon was inaugurated as the first president of the Commonwealth of the Philippines.

Those eight months have served to bring to the nation's leaders—particularly to the slight but dynamic figure in the president's chair in Malacanang palace—full realization of the basic implications of that first step toward complete independence.

The passionate ardor for a goal achieved—the enthusiasm for a triumph earned after 400 years of restless campaigning—the ecstasy that swept Manila during the inauguration—have given way to the sober comprehension of the heavy burden of being a free, small nation in this hungry part of the world.

Face to face with the small, thin man on whom this responsibility weighs most heavily, you sense his vibrant enthusiasm.

Frail But Full of Fire

President Quezon is 5 feet 6 inches tall; he weighs 125 pounds; his belt sinks deeply into his narrow waist; the marks of weariness often swing under his eyes and across his cheeks.

Yet there is no one in the Philippines with the actual vigor, the will to drive himself, of President Quezon. For many long months he lay on a sanatorium cot, ill of tuberculosis. During that time he examined himself, and with himself the realities of those few brief years huddled together that are called a man's life.

An extended illness, fraught with pain and impatience, creates one of two points of view. Either it produces within the victim a sense of futility and defeatism, or it makes him more eager than ever before to live vividly, to live restlessly, to live importantly.

Fears No Ills

In Mr. Quezon it had the latter effect, doubly exaggerated. Having whipped tuberculosis, he is now contemptuous of all ills and complaints. "Sickness will never get you, if you don't want it to," he once told a friend.

President Manuel L. Quezon

"Of course, you may be run over by an automobile or you may be drowned while you're in swimming. But those ordinary attacks on your well-being—don't let them bother you."

Such a philosophy is, indeed, that of a man who has unconditional confidence in himself. It is extremely doubtful, I am sure, that it ever entered President Quezon's mind that there is anything he wanted to do that he couldn't do. His sharp powers of discernment lend evidence of this faith.

Discernment Is Amazing

Once he was investigating a case of suspected graft. The alleged culprit had come into his office and he began to tell a story that bore all the logic of complete plausibility.

"Stop lying to me!" thundered Mr. Quezon. "That's the same story the others told. It can't be true."

It wasn't what he said that shook the man. It was the tone of his voice, which indicated that he not only saw the lie, but the whole fabric of the plot. The man broke down and actually seemed to consider it a privilege to admit his guilt.

President Quezon, like Napoleon, whose life has fascinated him, is one of the world's great optimists. Those who were close to him during the days when he commuted between New York and Washington tell about the way he used to accept multiple invitations for dinner.

Shows Touch of Genius

Sometimes he would accept as many as four invitations for the same hour of the same evening. Like all dynamic men, who hate details, he seemed to suppose that, if forced to, he could cope with the problem successfully.

But when the evening came and when he found that time could not be split four ways, he would wash his hands completely off the matter.

He would select that invitation which seemed most important; he would advise his compatriots to make satisfactory excuses for the others. Then he would slip on his topper, smile good night, and go forth expectantly for a pleasant evening.

That, I suppose, is genius.

President Quezon still plans more for himself to do than could possibly be achieved by one man. Yet his life as president of the Commonwealth is much more routine now than it ever was before. The office has made him conscious of the clock, the date book—and the bitter shortness of a day.

Works Like Dynamo

He rises at 5:30, and has breakfast on a little balcony of Malacanang, the palace, overlooking a silver stretch of water. He meets his first visitors in his pajamas, snapping out instructions or answers with the force of mid-morning. At 8 or 8:30 he dresses, shaves, and comes into his large and formal office.

This harbors an incongruous collection of fine curios. There are native kris, a suit of Japanese armor, Moro guns, an ivory Buddha, a gold inlaid cabinet guarding a parchment copy of the constitution.

On the walls are paintings of Magellan, the islands' discoverer; of Frank Murphy, the last governor general, who has just resigned as U. S. commissioner to the Philippines; of Rizal, the Filipinos' greatest revolutionary spirit.

Here President Quezon signs papers, meets others with appointments, and is warned by his secretary, Jorge Gargas, that it is time for the press conference.

At the end of a long table he faces two rows of inquisitive newsmen, only three of whom are Americans.

Medal Is Fascinating

As he meets, without hesitation, the onrush of their questions, you notice through the thin fabric of his native spun shirt a silver religious medal. It dangles from a string. Moved by the animation of his arms and shoulders, it swings back and forth like the orb of a pendulum. It seems to measure, as he lays out his policies, the rapid pulse beat of the new nation.

During the conference one of the reporters raises a skeptical question. Will the proposed form of the Commonwealth succeed? At this suggestion the medal suddenly stops swinging, and you notice that the president has straightened up.

"I tell you, gentlemen," he says, "we will have the best democratic government of the whole world right here in the Philippines. I say democratic because with so many constitutional limitations and so many newspapers here you can't always do what you want."

As he delivered that second sentence, he let a jesting smile play on his lips. He ought to. He hasn't been hampered, as far as one can notice, either by the assembly or by his critics.

He's Real Ruler

Although not in actuality a dictator, President Quezon has taken full charge of the government, and the government that is developing is the result of his own ideas.

Promptly an hour after he has entered the room, the president rises, nods to the reporters, and returns to his executive office.

Here he meets a delegation from the provinces. Here he has lunch and after that a siesta. Here he meets other delegations and here late at night he reads countless reports on the economic future of the islands.

There seems to be scarcely a moment during the day or week when he is free from the demands of his office, of his own restless vitality.

Even on Sunday morning when the foreign correspondent was invited to breakfast at Malacanang, he was deep in work. It was hardly 7:30, but already he had signed a number of ex-

Texas Gives New Colors to Fashion

"Blue Bonnet Blue" Is Taken From Flower of Lone Star State

Texas—not Paris, London or New York—is the style center of the moment.

The centennial celebration is producing some attractive new colors and also a host of novel designs. The contribution to interior decoration is not all rough and "he-manish," either. The four colorful periods of Texas history have plenty of romance—the Spanish exploration, the Mexican invasion, the Indian settlement and the days of the Texas rangers and the pioneer women.

"Blue bonnet blue" (from the Texas flower). Then there's sage green, a gray-yellow green perfect for walls because it is neither warm nor cold and will go with almost any other color. "Prickly pear yellow" is rich, exotic, golden and it is beautifully set off by the gray white of "yucca blossom."

Another striking room color scheme inspired by Texas uses "peyote pink" for walls, rug of weathered gray like desert rocks, and accent notes of "spring star purple" and "candlewood red." And for atmosphere, why not a white fur rug—chaps style—for fun?

Executive orders and probably had completed a conference or two.

There were, however, to be three or four hours of recreation this morning. He was dressed in riding breeches, and when his daughters came in to kiss him on the forehead where the hair grows thin, he said: "A drive to the hills today."

They clapped their hands and tripped out of the room to wait impatiently until their father should be done with a man who, although he had heard there was to be a drive to the hills, insisted on asking dull, dry questions.

A Hit with Everybody!

Essolene's popularity is based on what it delivers... power, pick-up, extra mileage. This regular priced gasoline gives better mileage than even most premium priced gasolines, and no gasoline at any price will give you more under hard summer driving conditions. That statement is backed by the world's leading oil organization, Esso Marketers.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, stunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbins refuse anything else. 25c.
